

The Contractor's QuickBooks Self-Check

Ten quick signs your books need attention before they cost you — in missed deductions, overpaid tax, or decisions made on bad numbers. Takes two minutes.

Construction books are their own animal — job costing, retention, 1099s, equipment — and most general bookkeeping quietly gets them wrong. Check the box next to any statement that sounds like your business.

CHECK ANY THAT APPLY

- ☐ You can't say right now which jobs made money and which lost money last quarter.
- ☐ Your bank and credit card accounts haven't been reconciled in QuickBooks in 3+ months.
- ☐ Materials, subs, and labor all land in one big "expenses" bucket instead of being tracked by job.
- ☐ You're not sure every subcontractor who should get a 1099 is set up to receive one.
- ☐ Owner draws, personal purchases, and business expenses are mixed in the same account.
- ☐ Customer deposits or retention/retainage aren't tracked separately from earned income.
- ☐ Equipment and vehicle purchases get expensed all at once instead of tracked as assets.
- ☐ Your "Undeposited Funds" or "Uncategorized" accounts hold money you can't explain.
- ☐ Last year's tax return numbers don't match what's in QuickBooks today.
- ☐ At tax time, you or your CPA scramble to reconstruct the year instead of pulling a report.

3+

Checked three or more? Your books need a cleanup before tax season — every box is money leaking or a decision made blind. The good news: it's fixable, and faster than you'd think.

WHY CONTRACTORS GET HIT HARDEST

Job costing, progress billing, retention, 1099 subs, and equipment depreciation make construction the hardest trade to keep clean. A generic bookkeeper who's never costed a job won't catch what's slipping.

HOW I WORK

I focus purely on your books and job costing — and I work with a trusted enrolled agent who handles payroll and taxes — so you get a complete back office, each piece done by a specialist.

Free, no-obligation books review

Send me your questions or your QuickBooks, and I'll give you a straight read on where you stand — no pitch, no pressure.

775-414-6800

www.bookkeepingbynalini.com

Nalini Pratap — Bookkeeping by Nalini LLC

775-414-6800 | www.bookkeepingbynalini.com | bookkeepingbynalini@gmail.com | Certified QuickBooks Online ProAdvisor

Proud Member of: Reno/Sparks Chamber of Commerce | The Missing Link Network | Empowered Ventures | Board Member, Philanthropy Committee — American Red Cross